taking territory is an eye opening account of why territorial conquest remains a phenomenon today the end of world war ii seemingly brought about a decline of territorial conquest many have argued that a strong territorial integrity norm in the postwar era explains this decline yet as dan altman shows states have seized territory numerous times since 1945 large scale conquests have waned but small targeted seizures have persisted the relationship between conquest and war has also shifted while states attempting conquest before 1945 often initiated war then sought to occupy large territories challengers today more often seize small regions then try to avoid war this strategy the fait accompli has become the predominant mode of conquest drawing on his own original data consisting of 175 conquest attempts between 1918 and 2024 altman explains why conquest persists what motivates it when it turns violent and when it succeeds he shows how miscalculated faits accomplis have sparked many post 1945 wars and why the motives behind many territorial grabs are often about image domestic politics and the ambitions of military officers incisive and illuminating taking territory cuts against what we think we know about post 1945 conquest to reveal its true causes and consequences doctoral thesis dissertation from the year 2009 in the subject literature comparative literature grade p h d language english abstract this doctoral thesis investigates otherness through works which have thoroughly examined and questioned the creation of a stable self by putting it in dialogue with its others and to society as a whole namely william butler yeats s selected poems james joyce s dubliners 1914 joseph conrad s heart of darkness 1899 chinua achebe s things fall apart 1958 and assia djebar s l amour la fantasia 1985 by representing the results of english belgian and french oppression in tangible material terms as well as its spiritual bankruptcies these writers mark their works as clearly critical of the colonial regime and opposed to colonial exploitation positioning themselves as postcolonial through their representations in this sense their texts raise issues debated in current postcolonial discussions speaking in the voice of the oppressed in the language of the oppressor as a weapon to make cultural difference visible these writers analyse the problem of identity crisis displacement disintegration and the effects of colonialism on the culture and psyche of the colonised subject despite their differing conceptions of irishness both william butler yeats and james joyce repudiated things english and helped to defend their history as well as regain pride in their race the other in these writers is presented not in terms of colour but conceived in relation to city countryside past present and protestant catholic the theoretical questions that haunted chinua achebe s career as a writer were also prompted by the desire to re orientate cultural discourse and initiate a discourse of resistance in his commitment to questions relating to identity and the relationship of the individual and history achebe like the above mentioned irish writers contributed to the analysis of colonisation and the natives resistance to oppression both at the level of the individual and that of the nation as another marginalised writer joseph conrad anticipated yeats s prophecy in his 1921 poem the second coming several years earlier with the publication of heart of darkness whereas yeats saw the spiral shapes of history conrad saw the emptiness at the centre of civilisation and the atrocities at the margins he showed the hollow morality at the centre of the imperialist enterprise one that could not hold he too wrote about the paralysis of modern society the disruption of traditional society under the impact of intruding forces
