this is a provocative essay of reflections on traditional mainstream scholarship on chinese art as done by towering figures in the field such as james cahill and wen fong james elkins offers an engaging and accessible survey of his personal journey encountering and interpreting chinese art through western scholars writings he argues that the search for optimal comparisons is itself a modern western interest and that art history as a discipline is inherently western in several identifiable senses although he concentrates on art history in this book and on chinese painting in particular these issues bear implications for sinology in general and for wider questions about humanistic inquiry and historical writing jennifer purtle s foreword provides a useful counterpoint from the perspective of a chinese art specialist anticipating and responding to other specialists likely reactions to elkins s hypotheses stories of art is james elkins s intimate history of art concise and original this engaging book is an antidote to the behemoth art history textbooks from which we were all taught as he demonstrates so persuasively there can never be one story of art cultures have their own stories about themselves about other cultures and to hear them all is one way to hear the multiple stories that art tells but each of us also has our own story of art a kind of private art history made up of the pieces we have seen and loved or hated the effects they had on us and the connections that might be drawn among them elkins opens up the questions that traditional art history usually avoids what about all the art not produced in western europe or in the europeanized americas is it possible to include asian art and indian art in the story what happens when one does to help us find answers he uses both western and non western artworks tables of contents from art histories written in cultures outside the centre of western european tradition and strangely wonderful diagrams of how artworks might connect through a single individual true multiculturalism may be an impossibility but art lovers can each create a story of art that is right for themselves this is a book about how to read visual images from fine art to photography film television and new media it explores how meaning is communicated by the wide variety of texts that inhabit our increasingly visual world but rather than simply providing set meanings to individual images visual culture teaches readers how to interpret visual texts with their own eyes while the first part of the book takes readers through differing theoretical approaches to visual analysis the second part shifts to a medium based analysis connected by an underlying theme about the complex relationship between visual culture and reality howells and negreiros draw together seemingly diverse methodologies while ultimately arguing for a polysemic approach to visual analysis the third edition of this popular book contains over fifty illustrations for the first time in colour included in the revised text is a new section on images of power fear and seduction a new segment on video games as well as fresh material on taste and judgement this timely edition also offers a glossary and suggestions for further reading written in a clear lively and engaging style visual culture continues to be an ideal introduction for students taking courses in visual culture and communications in a range of disciplines including media and cultural studies sociology and art and design
