what is paul s theology of material possessions and where did it come from through demonstrating continuity in the broad fiscal thought of jesus and paul carter suggests that paul owes his financial thought to the great sermon tradition carter establishes this by assessing paul s historical environment and extant writings to display the plausibility that paul knew the dominical tradition carter goes on to assess the likelihood that paul knew the pre synoptic sermon tradition because of its ubiquity in early church discipleship the study finishes with the conclusion that jesus and paul s financial thought displays remarkable symmetry which cannot be explained merely by a common cultural environment consequently it is deemed highly likely that paul depends on the dominical tradition for the contours of his financial thought seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject psychology social psychology grade 1 3 university of applied sciences osnabrück language english abstract this paper is about the role of credibility of eyewitness testimony when it comes to investigations eyewitness testimonies are of great importance for investigations and often are the main reason for suspects getting accused wrong statements by eyewitnesses can have fatal consequences for an innocent person a conviction of an innocent person is an unbelievable incision in life even if the misidentified target does not get convicted a charge can evoke emotional problems as well as bad reputation these facts show the great importance of the reliability of eyewitnesses in our society but according to rademacher the credibility of eyewitness testimony is overestimated although it is of such a great importance the foundation of this elaboration is the hypothesis that says that eyewitnesses often make mistakes when it comes to a culprit s identification initially background information regarding the perception and identification of a person are constituted afterwards the experiment matching faces to photographs with its implementation and results is examined to prove the thesis also possible reasons for people s misidentifications are given from which partly result suggestions for improvements for real life situations
